By Hippocrates ,Written 400

The disease of the hemorrhoids is formed in this way: if bile or phlegm be determined to the veins in the rectum, it heats the blood in the veins; and these veins becoming heated attract blood from the nearest veins, and being gorged the inside of the gut swells outwardly, and the heads of the veins are raised up, and being at the same time bruised by the faeces passing out, and injured by the blood collected in them, they squirt out blood, most frequently along with the faeces, but sometimes without faeces. It is to be cured

More patients than ever are seeking treatment for symptomatic internal hemorrhoids.

Things have changed now , hemorrhoids have been proved to be of arterial origin by the PH of the blood & it's bright red color , Giving Birth To
